ABOUT ME

I am a third-year student of English Studies at the Complutense University of Madrid. Teaching languages, particularly English, is my vocation. With a keen interest in literature and multilingualism, I am fluent in Spanish, English and Basque and I also speak French and a bit of Italian. My aspiration is to share my knowledge, help others develop their language skills and gain more experience in the field of education. Ultimately, my goal is to put my skills to practice and enhance them while learning in the process.
